What is Digital Commons?

Digital Commons is an online repository whose purpose is to collect and disseminate the intellectual output of the University’s faculty, staff and students.

Conferences and Events in Digital Commons

Digital Commons is proud to host over 25 University-related conferences and events. In addition to providing a permanent open-access archive for event materials, Digital Commons supports collecting, evaluating, and selecting proposals, including options for single and double-blind peer review.

Hosting Policies

Hosted conferences and events must be sponsored, hosted, or organized with the substantial involvement of the Georgia Southern University community, and open to participation by Georgia Southern students, faculty, staff, alumni, or community partners.

Digital Commons is excited to partner with conference organizers in our commitment to Open Access archiving and sharing of conference materials.

http://digitalcommons.georgiasouthern.edu/conferences/

Rev. 2017
Reuse Licensing for Hosted Conference Materials

Open Access & Reuse Licensing
To facilitate sharing and reuse of Open Access conference and event materials, it is important for visitors to understand the terms of use for these materials. Conference Organizers should consider including explicit reuse licensing information with archived materials in Digital Commons.

Creative Commons
Creative Commons (www.creativecommons.org) offers a library of standard reuse licenses that protect content creators while encouraging reuse of their work. We recommend that authors share their work using a CC-BY 4.0 license. This license waives all copyrights except the right to attribution, ensuring that authors are acknowledged for their work.

Reuse Licensing in Digital Commons
Common approaches to reuse licensing in Digital Commons include:

• Require use of a specific reuse license as a condition of participation in the event.
• Allow authors to select a license of their choice by “opting out” of the conference’s recommended license.

Digital Commons can be configured to accommodate these and other licensing arrangements.

Questions? We are here to help!
digitalcommons@georgiasouthern.edu
(912) 478-5114