Gubernatorial Candidates Visit Campus

Democrat Carter

By CILE DAVIS

A group of students gathered at the Statesboro Airport on Saturday, to welcome the arrival of Democrat gubernatorial nominee Jimmy Carter, who was already late. A Mr. Treado, owner of a local restaurant, was passing out little campaign pins shaped like gold peanuts with “Carter” written on them.

Carter arrived 30 minutes late. He stepped off the small plane and the reporters swarmed around him. He kept cool, though. He smiled a lot, shook a bunch of hands, and said, “No thanks, I just had one” to a Pepsi, and got inside a station wagon headed for the campus.

It was quite a bit ride that I got a chance to interview him. The text of our interview follows.

“Mr. Carter, is there any truth to the charge that since 1966 you have switched polls from left to right?”

“None.”

“How do you explain the charge to that effect?”

“I don’t know. I haven’t changed since 1966. I just think that my image this time has been much better.

Republican Hal Suit

By GEOFFREY BENNETT

An estimated crowd of some 500 people turned out last Thursday afternoon, October 21, at the Landrum Center for the unveiling of Governor’s, “Hal”suit.

Said the Republican nominee for Governor, “Hal” suit, the Republican nominee for Governor, “Hal” suit, the Republican nominee for Governor, “Hal” suit.

“I am very pleased to introduce you to my campaign suite, which I believe will be a great help in the upcoming election. The suit is made from high-quality materials and will withstand the rigors of the campaign trail.”

Jimmy Carter
By Cle Davis

As an avid supporter of Jimmy Carter, I feel I should give equal time to the Democratic candidate for governor.

Jimmy Carter, a fourth-generation Georgian, is the better candidate for governor. I like his people-oriented campaign platform, as opposed to the traditional big money campaigns of political candidates.

Carter has been campaigning for the governor's job for four years. He has been traveling around the state where people are: factories, shifts, supermarkets, and ball games.

He has personally met over half a million Georgians, and gotten to know their hopes, fears, and dreams.

He has governmental experience on the state level. During his term as a state senator, he was voted as one of the most effective legislators.

A leader of the Plains Baptist Church and the father of four, Carter is also a Navy veteran.

His campaign has been well run without big money or big-name support. His campaign has leveled at the people, primarily young people.

His platform is lengthy and comprehensive, outlining many fine programs for the state such as: to serve all Georgians, not just a powerful or selfish few; to set an example of honesty, integrity, and thrift for all others in public office; to strengthen local government and return the control of all aspects of government to the people; to establish close ties with the people and leaders of adjacent states; to increase the health and property of Georgians will be protected at all times against riots and disorders; to prevent the legalization of marijuana; to fight with all possible strength against organized crime and its influence in gambling, prostitution, drugs, moonshine, pornography, stolen cars, and other criminal activities; to assure better training and higher pay for all peace officers; to establish and maintain the highest standards of quality in the public schools and colleges of Georgia, in spite of any obstacle brought about by integration, court rulings, local popularity, or other causes; to start a full term, state-wide kindergarten program; to strengthen the vocational education systems from the grammar school through the post high school years; to provide extra instruction for slower students to guarantee that if humanly possible no child is promoted into the fourth grade without being able to read and write; to reduce the amount of property taxes now required to support education and make these funds available to local governments; to devote a taxpayer's approach to both taxation and spending; to stop loan shark activities in Georgia and to protect the consumer from unfair business practices; to continue "Little People's Day" to guarantee access to the governor's office for all Georgians; to construct roadways for the state; to ensure that it is never more profitable for the Georgia people to stay on welfare than to work; to establish a formula for allotting local contract highway funds based on need and not on political expediency.

I like the way Carter builds his campaign around the needs of people and leaves big money and big power out of it. I like his accessibility to the people.

Georgia needs an accessible governor who cares about the people. Carter is the man for the job.

"Choice '70": mock Georgia Gubernatorial election

All students participate in the election. A student does not have to be a registered voter in the state of Georgia to vote in this election.

The polls will open tomorrow Wednesday, October 17 from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. in the Student Union and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Health Science Center.

Students with,
Hal Suit

by JAMES H. HATFIELD
Chairman of the Young Republican Club

As an on-campus supporter of Hal Suit's candidacy for governor, I feel I should share with Georgia Southern's students my reasons for following Suit.

Hal Suit makes sense; Jimmy Carter doesn't. Though this may sound rather flippant, a closer examination will prove my point.

I have worked with Mr. Suit for six months. During that time we have discussed at length the issues I feel are the major ones for college students.

Early in the campaign I urged Mr. Suit to speak out strongly on overcrowded classes and inadequate facilities. He agreed with my opinions, but in a more cautious fashion.

He feels that these should be points made to his opponents. I feel that these should be points made when the public is listening. He will use this platform to improve the faculty and staff.

I have confidence in Hal Suit's ability to stick to his principles. He has been a leader in the fight for improvements in education. He has been instrumental in bringing about changes in the state education system.

In the arena of education, Mr. Suit has been a leader in the fight for improvements in education. He has been instrumental in bringing about changes in the state education system.

In conclusion, I urge all Georgia Southern students to support Hal Suit for governor. He is a man of integrity and vision. He will make Georgia a better place for all.
